THE COURT HOUSE.

As it will be when completed.

The new Court House now under construction is situated on the north-west side of High Street, two lots east of R. W. Timmins' blacksmith shop.

The building will be forty-two by twenty-seven feet, two-story high, with different entrances. The lower story will have at its main entrance a large porch, facing High Street. After passing through the porch, you land in the guard room, from which four doors leading into different departments are found. The one to the east is the entrance to the cells, three in number, two of which are to be constructed of oak with iron bar frontings, the other of iron lined with oak. The doors of the three cells are to be operated with but one lock, arranged in such a manner that the guard has but to lift a certain bar and they swing open, or each door can be opened separately. The passage way in front of these cells is separated from the guard room by a heavy open oak partition. The door to the north-east corner leads to the kitchen; the one to the north-west corner to the constable's room; the other is the entrance to the Non-Commissioner's office.

The entrance to the second story will be at the west end of the building, it being made by way of an enclosed staircase. Upon entering you land in what is to be known as the public hall, which will have a seating capacity for upwards of two hundred. This spacious portion of the hall is separated from the remainder by a partition in front of which is the courtroom for the witnesses and jury. To the north of this platform is the jury room; to the south, the constable's room; at the back of the hall is the Judge's room.

Chapel, bath and outbuildings are to be erected at the rear of the lot. The building material is being brought direct from British Columbia. Mr. J. Symonds, the contractor, accompanied by Messrs. C. Barker and W. H. Young of Regina, arrived in town on Friday last. It is Mr. Symonds' intention to increase the present number of laborers as soon as sufficient material arrives from the coast. (The building will be completed about the middle of July.)

Binder Twine.

Morden Monitor:—Arrangements have been completed with the C. P. R. Company, whereby agents of that company will sell binder twine, thereby giving the farmer twine at factory prices, freight and a small commission to the agents added. The only difficulty in the matter of some farmers to pay cash, as will be required by this arrangement, but the banks will be quite prepared to advance the money to good men. Should this scheme be carried into effect, and we believe it will, the savings of our farmers will be about $14 on an average. Most farmers require at least 400 lbs. of twine, which at fourteen cents, the price paid for good twine last year, would be $56 and by the proposed arrangement this year it will only cost 102 cents or $42 for 400 pounds, making a saving to the average farmer of $14. The whole Territory will reap the benefit, which will leave a large amount of money in the country that would otherwise go out of it, thereby benefiting every person and institution therein.

Mr. Boyd, M. P. for Marquette, is said to be the author of this beneficial innovation, which is another instance plainly showing that while Watson was a man of words, Boyd is a man of deeds.

Messrs. Ferguson & Porter have just completed three fine row boats.

PRESSMEN'S EXCURSION.

Sight Seeing in the Rockies—Scenery is Indescribable.

SPENCER EXCURSION, B. C., May 15.—Two days' glorious experience in the mountains has given the press party enough to think and talk about for the rest of their lives. At 10 a.m. the arrangements were made by the C. P. R. hotel management to give the party the best time possible, and Saturday afternoon was spent in a delightful drive over the National Park, all points being visited. The party took a sulphur bath at the cave, and afterwards visited the sanitarium and other points of interest. The night was spent on board the train, and as the express was late on Sunday morning, the forenoon was spent in wandering about the park, climbing mountains, visiting the baths and otherwise enjoying ourselves. Our cars were hitched on to the express, and then began the great day's sight seeing. The observation car was attached, and the party occupied it all day, remaining till 8 o'clock when the summit of the Selkirk was reached and the party went to bed. The delight of the party with the mountains.

SCENERY IS INDESCRIBABLE.

A great many members rode down the deep gorge of the Kicking Horse on the cow catcher, a thrilling experience which all enjoyed, but which they rejoiced at being safely over with. The coast people have telegraphed of ferns to entertain the party.

VANCOUVER, May 16.—The Manitoba Press Association arrived this evening. They were met at the station by Mayor Cope, a committee of citizens and members of the local press. They were taken aboard the Empress of China, and shown over the vessel. In the evening they were taken to the theatre to see "Hindostanee." Tomorrow they go to Westminster on special train cars and will be taken up the Fraser river to see the canneries. On Wednesday they proceed to Victoria.

VALUE OF WATER POWER.

The great flood of water now passing down the Moose Jaw River may cause some to turn their thoughts to the various proposals to utilize this stream for manufacturing purposes, by the construction of works necessary to control the water power. What an immense power this great force of water would furnish, if it could be successfully harnessed and used as required!

An exchange, referring to the question of the value of water power says: "Water power is the cheapest source of energy that can be found, yet millions of horses power go to waste with in easy reach. The greatest enterprise for the utilization of water power now contemplated is that of harnessing Niagara. The Cataract Construction Company is just completing the first section of its contemplated work. It takes only a small fraction of the possible power of the falls, yet it will furnish 150,000 horse power from the United States side, and 100,000 horse power from the Canadian side. If the whole power of Niagara Falls could be harnessed it would probably be more than all the steam power now used in America. The water-courses of the Sierra that fall 6,000 feet in a score or two of miles have greater possibilities than even Niagara, and will one day be brought to furnish all the power that California needs. Electric transmission of power is a development of only a few years. A decade ago it was hardly more than a dream of the future. Today it is revolutionizing industry, and in another score of years it will probably have driven direct application of steam power from the field."

A SOUTHERN OUTRAGE

New York newspapers do not consider the report of a southern lynching "news" nowadays. The weakest joke in the paper would be strong enough to crowd out the record of such an outrage, and no matter how hard up the editor might be for "copy" he would hardly devote more than a couple of lines to such an everyday affair. But to Canadian readers the press reports from distant states of the union have always been short, and although the bold fact that another negro has been burnt or ridiculed with bullets by a lawless mob is quite a noteworthy thing, we can have no conception of the enthusiasm which familiarity with the subject has bred amongst our neighbors in the United States. In rare cases only, for instance, have the newspapers given any space to the recent lynching of a colored man in South Carolina, although the circumstances surrounding it were shocking beyond description. The negro was accused of an attempt to assault a woman. He promptly gave himself into custody, declaring his innocence and asking for the protection of the State till a fair trial should have been accorded him. The woman was confronted with the accused man, but she frankly admitted that she did not recognize him. But as the mob wanted an entertainment they demanded that the prisoner be given up by the law, and the wretched figure-head of authority, who goes by the name of Governor, actually did surrender the man to the lawless death prepared for him, even without so much as a show of protest. Such a state of things—too heinous to deplore or condemn—can only evoke amazement that in a civilized land there is no power to stop it. History glows with instances where the influence of common Christianity has punished heathen depravity no more abhorrent than the social condition of these States of the South, but then the whites of Carolina are themselves Christians, who send as many missions to the heathen as the rest of us.

IN FOAL MARES.

The foaling season is within the near future, and it is not out of place to consider a few points in connection with it, even though there is perhaps not much that is new to be said. But if there is not much which is fresh to say, there is always a fresh generation to say it to. The whole requires no physician. The mare has now got into a condition when the foal makes a serious draft on her system, and although it is unwise to let her get fat she requires a plentiful supply of food, particularly if she is at work, and undoubtedly the mare is better at work than kept in close quarters; and she may be kept at work up to the time of foaling with advantage, but discretion is advisable in this matter. A mare rarely dies through being kept at work up to the time of foaling, but undoubtedly there are many instances where mares are unnecessarily fatigued, and made to suffer by being compelled to exert themselves to the full at a time when nature calls for exercise, but not for too severe labor. Mares at grass generally foal with least complications; the food and the moderate exercise being the natural condition under which the animal exists, and it is a recognized fact that the nearer nature is approached, the better the chance of a natural parturition.

Perhaps nothing does so much to upset the fetus as causing a mare to "back" a load; a steady forward draft strains not part, but the unnatural action of forcing a load backwards cramps the hinder quarters, and the sensitive parts are so inconvenienced that an effort of expulsion is attempted, or the fetus is forced from its natural position. Heavy loads on the back are also prejudicial, and not unfrequently cause difficulties. Very heavy walking, where the animal can only hit her legs out of the slough by an extraordinary effort, is harmful. For the same reason it is wrong to allow a mare heavy in foal to act as a chain horse on a manure heap.

It is too early yet to obtain freshly grown green food, but a small allowance of carrots acts beneficially on the system, and a small quantity of pulped mangolds may be given with advantage. The idea is to give them rather as a medicine than a food. When a mare foals before grass time she is in advance of nature and therefore her artificial food should be as nearly in accordance with her natural food as circumstances permit. When animals are left to themselves they invariably produce their young at a time when there is a new supply of green food coming on, so that both they and their offspring may take advantage of it. Domesticity upsets this, and the females come in season earlier. A few roots keep the bowels free and the blood in a healthy condition. Perhaps the efficiency of the roots at this period of the year is best realized when their effect on cut-off health horses is noticed. Everyone who has had the misfortune of owning a horse affected with grease or other "humors" disease, knows how soon the benefit of a few roots added to its diet becomes apparent, for the swellings rapidly decrease, and the animal is more comfortable. The medicinal as well as feeding properties of bran are well known to every horse-keeper, and during the few weeks previous to foaling an occasional bran mash—made of scalding water and allowed to become thoroughly softened before use, is most valuable and when the time of foaling approaches, a small mash may be given daily with advantage.

Perhaps no domestic animal shows signs of approaching parturition more unevenly than does the mare. The ordinary signs of the udder distending the teats becoming waxed, commence in different mares at such irregular times that no definite time can be fixed when the foaling will actually take place. Even men of great experience with mares are constantly far out in their reckonings. The "drooping" of the bones is a fairly reliable sign, but mares differ much in the length of time which elapses between this action and parturition. Then again, the period of gestation is sufficiently irregular to afford only an approximate guide as to when the mare will foal; consequently it usually becomes necessary to watch the mare for several days before the foal appears, as neglect to do this not rarely causes loss. The writer can speak of personal loss through being too certain, and knows of those who have suffered in a similar manner. When all is right the foal comes speedily, and the whole operation is rapidly over, the foal up and sucking, and the mare little worse for her labor. The danger is chiefly in that the mare may get down and the foal may not get clear.—North West Farmer.

A Valentine.

Accept, dear wife, this little token,
As if I were even the time you took,
You find the world a better place—
The love I have always loved to speak.
Our little ones are making merry
With music, dance and jest,
But in these lines, though awkward
The genuine article is expressed.
You are so fair and sweet and tender,
Dear, brown-eyed little sweetheart mine,
As when, a fellow youth, once I endeavored I asked to be your valentine.
What though these years of ours be fleeting?
What though the years of youth be flown?
I'll mock old Kronos with repeating:
"I love my love and her alone!"
And when I fall before his reaping,
And when my stuttering speech is done,
Think not my love is dead or sleeping,
But that it waits for you to come.
So take, dear love, this little token,
And if there speaks in any line
The sentiment I'll fain have spoken, Say, will you kiss your valentine?
—Ladies Journal.

The first shipment of Canadian cattle arrived at Liverpool on May 14th. The commissioners appointed by the British Board of Agriculture are keeping the animals distinct and apart from all others until they are slaughtered. Wm. Hastings, a member of the Council of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, has been appointed an inspector under the Contagious Disease Animal Act, by the Canadian Government and was in attendance and carefully noted the inspection of several cases which were thought worthy of surveillance. The report upon these cattle is expected to be satisfactory in every respect and there is little doubt but that the embargo will be removed after it is made public.

FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1893.

Sweet May.

Sweet May! that tells the orchards bloom
And warms the heart that's grown so cold Thou bringest summer to the winter's gloom
Of all spring months, thou art the dearest
We greet thee with a welcome note
As joyful as the peeping plovers,
And gladly do the corn and clover Thine influence gladly wait to cover.
Sweet May! thy rainiest now is cast Upon the older laborers,
And Nature wakes again at last
To yield the sunshine, birds and flowers
The golden beauty reigns complete,
As fair as we may hope to win it;
But, oh! there's danger with the sweet,
For in the oysters lie "hot in it."
Sweet May! the brooks thy presence sing
The while they bubble in their throat,
And their silver surface gleam and ring
To tell the world of their glad state.
How in their banks the anglers sit And spend the day in vainly trying To land their fish—Alas! they waste Their time and make no money by it.
Sweet May! thou art the time of love
When young men woo the maid so true
And try to win her with a love
As true as the heart of a soldier.
Sweet May! thou art the time of love
When young men woo the maid so true
And try to win her with a love
As true as the heart of a soldier.
Sweet May! thou art the time of love
When young men woo the maid so true
And try to win her with a love
As true as the heart of a soldier.

"Stock Book" kept by the official agent of the Jockey Club. The first attempt to evolve order out of the chaos of English equine pedigrees was made in 1791, and the first volume of the Stock Book was published in 1808. All the horses now on the turf or at the stud in England trace their ancestry in a direct line to one or other of three stallions, viz., the Byerly Turk, of whom nothing is known except that he was the charger of a Captain Blythe in 1685; the Darley Arabian, a generally imported from Aleppo, about the end of the reign of William III.; and the Godolphin Arabian, or Barb, brought to England about twenty-five years later. It is said to be impossible to find an English thoroughbred that through males or females does not combine the blood of all these three progenitors. It is curious that the development of speed in trotting-horses to which so much attention is now being paid on this continent dates back to the importation, in 1788, of the thoroughbred horse, Messenger, from England to Philadelphia. This horse, a grey stallion, was at the stud for twenty years, and almost every trotter now on this side, whose pedigree can be worked out, may be traced to Messenger, who seems to have had the faculty of transmitting the large percentage of his descendants either thoroughbred or not, the "trotting blood." But, of course, this instinct has been wonderfully developed by breeding and training.

A THANKLESS SINNER.—A Journal reader was looking over an old newspaper the other day, when he found the following incident, which he thought worth recording:

"I was in an English hospital. The doctor was looking at his morning report, which he had just written.
"How do you feel this morning?" he asked.

"I feel all right," answered the patient.

"But why didn't you call me? I might have been able to comfort the poor fellow a little in his last moments."

"He comforted for myself, sir."

"That's indeed! And what did you say to comfort him?"

"He said to me, 'Robinson, I suppose you know you're very sick?'"

"Yes, sir."

"Robinson, I suppose you know you can't last long?"

"Yes, sir."

period of 1891-92, while the consolidated fund expenditure for ten months has been $25,010,929, or $687,920 less; so that compared with the first ten months of the last fiscal year the finances of the country show a betterment of $1, 742,966, with two months of the year yet to run. The financial return to date indicates a surplus for the fiscal year of 1892-93 which closes 30th of June. The surplus on consolidated fund to date is $6,911,609, and even if from that be deducted the sum of $2,762,711 expended for railway subsidies, public works and the like and charged to capital account, there is still left a net surplus of $3,181,983 which is likely to be increased somewhat during the current and coming months.

Mr. Burton.

Mr. Burton.—California is a lovely country, the sick get well, the poor get rich, cyclones and frosts are practically unknown. A hundred to three hundred dollars per acre is made each year on fruit with irrigation. The California Land and Water Exchange, of Dayton, O., control large quantities of land in California, which they plant, cultivate, pay taxes for ten years, paying you $40 per acre as your part of the profit, they keeping the balance for the care and cultivation. They give an acre of land away with each 4 certificates. All they ask you to do is to pay for the 4 certificates, which can be done in small payments each month. They will send you the names of 50 persons who last year received from $25 to $500 on one year's investment. President Harrison says "that of the good things of California none has been told." The Hon. John Burton says, "Truly California is a man's paradise." To those who believe the California Land and Water Exchange, of Dayton, O., is a free-will market for the property. Why should anyone be poor when such a chance remains open and you do not have made any money or work, to get the profits and do not have to look home. Write them today and get the particulars.
